The above-named Councils formally adopted the Tees Valley Joint Minerals and Waste Development Plan Documents (DPDs) on 15 September 2011 and they now form part of each authority's Local Development Framework.

The Minerals and Waste Core Strategy DPD contains the long-term spatial vision and strategic policies for minerals and waste developments. The Minerals and Waste Policies and Sites DPD identifies specific sites for minerals and waste development and provides policies which will be used to assess minerals and waste planning applications. The DPDs cover the whole of the Boroughs of Darlington, Hartlepool, Middlesbrough and Stockton-on-Tees and the part of Redcar and Cleveland Borough that does not lie within the North York Moors National Park.

Preparation of the DPDs involved extensive consultation and a formal examination by an Inspector appointed by the Secretary of State. The Inspector concluded that the DPDs satisfy statutory requirements and meet the Government's criteria for soundness.
