

This is an easy read guide to

If you do not agree with a decision about your care and support

What is this guide about?

This guide explains:

- what to do if you do not agree with a decision about your care and support
- how to ask for a decision to be looked at again
- who can help you do this

If I do not agree with a decision

You may not agree with a decision.

The decision may be about:

- your care
- your support

You can ask for the decision to be looked at again.

This is called a review.

How to ask for a review

You need to contact your:

- Social Worker
- Social Care Officer
- Occupational Therapist

You can contact them by:

- phone
- email
- letter
- arrange to meet them in person

Tell them:

- which decision you do not agree with
- why you are unhappy with the decision

What can be looked at again?

You can ask for a review if:

- you do not agree with the eligibility decision
- you feel your needs were not understood
- you feel you were not listened to
- your support plan is not meeting your goals

Eligibility means you can get help.

What happens next?

A manager will look at your request.

The manager will:

- check the decision
- contact you if they need more information

The manager will tell you what they decide.

If you are still unhappy

If you are still unhappy, you can ask for:

- a new conversation record assessment

A different social care worker will do this assessment.

The new decision will be final.

A conversation record assessment is a talk with a social care worker.

It used to be called a needs assessment.

The talk helps the Council understand you.

Can someone help me ask for a review?

Yes. Someone can help you if:

- they are your representative
- or you give them permission

This could be:

- a family member
- a carer
- an independent advocate
- someone with Power of Attorney

An advocate:

- helps you speak up
- supports you
- acts in your best interests

The Council can arrange this for you.

A Power of Attorney is a legal document.

It lets you choose someone you trust to help you make decisions or make decisions for you.

The Attorney must:

- follow your wishes
- act in your best interests

Making a complaint

You can still make a complaint by:

- using the Council's complaints process
